

Vince Kelly

Vince was born in Sydney, Australia, where he completed his education and later pursued his studies at Macquarie University. With a career spanning 33 years in the banking and finance sector, he eventually relocated to Ballina on the North Coast of New South Wales. For the past two decades, he has been engaged in private investing, humorously referring to himself as a self-employed retiree.

The proud father of two grown sons and four grandchildren, Vince leads an active lifestyle. He is passionate about outdoor pursuits, particularly surfing, which he has enjoyed for over six decades. A sports enthusiast, he currently participates in three clubs, engaging in Walking Football, Pickleball, and paddling Outrigger Canoes and Dragon Boats.

Vince's football journey began at the age of 10, playing competitively at school and for a local junior club. His achievements include playing in the Sydney inter-suburban Premier League during the 1970s and 80s, followed by a decade of involvement in Futsal and coaching junior teams. Describing himself primarily as a midfield player with occasional forays as a goal scorer, Vince remains dedicated to the sport that has been a significant part of his life.
